

EMMIT BRAGER #311725 §
v. § CIVIL ACTION NO. 6:14cv700
STATE OF TEXAS §

After review of the pleadings, the magistrate judge issued a report recommending that Brager's petition be denied. The magistrate judge interpreted Brager's petition as seeking issuance of the writ of mandamus and determined that the federal district courts do not have jurisdiction to issue the writ of mandamus against state officers or agencies.

In his objections, Brager asserts that he was not seeking the issuance of a writ of mandamus, but that he was proceeding under the All Writs Act. He states that “this court has the authority and power, under Title 28 U.S.C. sec. 1651, to cause the state court to recall its judgment of conviction.”

Because Brager sought issuance of a writ commanding that certain action be taken, the magistrate judge did not err in construing it as a request for the writ of mandamus. See Cross v. Texas, 508 F.App’x 290, 2013 WL 174242 (5th Cir., January 16, 2013) (district court did not err in construing request for order directing state court to provide petitioner with records as mandamus petition and dismissing such request for want of jurisdiction); Gowan v. Keller, 471 F.App’x 288, 2012 WL 1946834 (5th Cir., May 30, 2012) (request for order directing state court to perform certain duties was properly construed as seeking mandamus relief).

In any event, the All Writs Act, 28 U.S.C. §1651, is a source of authority for issuing writs in situations not covered by statute. Carlisle v. United States, 517 U.S. 416, 429, 116 S.Ct. 1460, 1467 (1996). Because there is statutory authority for challenging a state conviction and sentence in federal court, through the writ of habeas corpus, the All Writs Act is not available to Brager. See Pennsylvania Bureau of Corrections v. United States Marshals Service, 474 U.S. 34, 43, 106 S.Ct. 355, 361 (1985); Morrow v. Vasquez, civil action no. 1:13cv123, 2013 WL 1767781 (E.D.Tex., March 25, 2013), report adopted by 2013 WL 1767779 (E.D.Tex., April 23, 2013). Brager’s objections are without merit.

The Court has conducted a careful de novo review of those portions of the magistrate judge’s proposed findings and recommendations to which Brager objected. See 28 U.S.C. §636(b)(1) (district judge shall “make a de novo determination of those portions of the report or specified proposed findings or recommendations to which objection is made.”) Upon such de novo review, the Court has determined that the report of the magistrate judge is correct and the Relator’s objections are without merit. It is accordingly

ORDERED that the Relator's objections are overruled and the report of the magistrate judge (docket no. 4) is ADOPTED as the opinion of the District Court. It is further

ORDERED that the above-styled civil action is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE. It is further

ORDERED that any and all motions which may be pending in this action are hereby DENIED.

So ORDERED and SIGNED this 11th day of March, 2015.
